

Tony Matcham is a Medical Capability Developer for the U.S Army Special Operations Command. Tony has 35 years of combined military and civil service experience working with the Army and Special Operations community. Tony works closely with academia, industry, and government agencies, as a contributor to research, technology, and development programs focused on improving battlefield medical care.