

COL Jamie C. Riesberg is currently stationed at Fort Bragg, NC and has over 16 years of experience as an Army Operational Physician. He chairs the Special Operations Medical Association's Prolonged Field Care Committee and the Department of Defense Joint Trauma System Prolonged Casualty Care Working Group. His vision is to equip Point-of-Injury providers and medics to provide multi-system trauma care and acute illness care in austere and hostile environments around the world. Dr. Riesberg has military deployments as part of a Special Operations Role II surgical team in Afghanistan and Africa, and has worked as a physician in environments ranging from the Grand Canyon to Swaziland.