

Amy Lin, MBA, MA
Division Director, ARPANET-H Innovation Network
Advanced Research Projects Agency for Health (ARPA-H)

Amy leads the ARPANET-H innovation network at the Advanced Research Projects Agency for Health (ARPA-H), which connects people, innovators, and institutions and mobilizes capabilities to help transformative innovations reach both the market and the end-user.

Previously, Amy was the Director of USAID's Center for Innovation and Impact (CII) in the Global Health Bureau, which applies market shaping, innovative financing, digital health, and enabling innovation approaches to global health challenges. Earlier, she was based in Mumbai with Monitor Inclusive Markets, where she developed social enterprise models. Prior to this role, she served as the HIV/AIDS Program Director for the Clinton Health Access Initiative (CHAI) in Liberia. Before CHAI, Amy was at the World Bank's Development Marketplace, which funds new approaches to serving the poor.

Amy also worked with TechnoServe in Peru, creating growth strategies for microbusinesses. Prior, she was with the Boston Consulting Group (BCG), advising multinational companies in the pharmaceutical, financial services, and consumer goods industries.

Amy holds an MBA from the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania, an MA in International Relations from the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS), and a BA with Distinction in Political Science from Yale University.
